

Social Theory and Dynamics

Published by the Institute of Social Theory and Dynamics, JAPAN

Call for Papers for the 5th Issue

The Institute of Social Theory and Dynamics (ISTAD) is an academic organization that performs theoretical and empirical studies and research on the structure and dynamics of contemporary societies, carrying the banner of critical sociology.

Social Theory and Dynamics (STAD) is an international journal of critical sociology and social science, which holds articles that analyze contemporary social problems from critical and radical perspectives.

STAD is a platform that provides a new outlet for Japanese and international scholars who would like to engage in critical sociology by publishing their work in English.

STAD also encourages more extensive research on social problems in Japan and the world, both within regions and globally.

STAD is an international peer-reviewed journal to which any applicant can submit and publish original research contributions to scientific knowledge and critical reason.

Areas covered by the journal include (but are not limited to):

- Labor, class and inequality
- Cities, slums and urban policy
- Youth and elderly
- Medical care and the environment
- Nation, state and war
- Development and civil society
- Neoliberalism and governance
- Gentrification and the urban poor
- Minorities, ethnicity and immigration
- Crime and delinquency
- Gender and sexuality
- Power and social movements
- Race, racism and discrimination
- Homelessness, street and public space
- Prison, detention and punishment
- Others

For further information, deadline and instructions for submission, please visit our website. <http://www.istdjournal.org/english/>